1964-01-09	1964-01-09	https://www.nytimes.com/1964/01/09/archives/dr-julius-raab-dies-in-austria-ex-chancellor-forged-republic.html	Dr. Julius Raab Dies in Austria; Ex-Chancellor Forged Republic; Obtained Soviet Withdrawal of Troops to End Occupation After Pledge of Neutrality; Dr. Raab, the nation's Chancellor since 1953 to 1961, led a mission to Moscow that brought about Soviet agreement to the Allied withdrawal from this country on a pledge that Austria would practice neutrality; The Moscow success was sealed by the four-power state treaty with Austria on May 15, 1955.; At Dr. Raab's bedside in Floridsdorf Hospital at his death was his wife, Hermine. The couple had no children.; Radio and television networks interrupted programs to announce Dr. Raab's death and after a minute of silence switched to mourning music.; United His Party; Some called him a phlegmatic ox, a burbling frog, or a good-natured bear. But to most people, Julius Raab was a sly political fox, and a boss. He could handle men. He was a superb behind-the-scenes political dealer, able to unite into a homogeneous whole a People's party composed of peasants, industrialists, clerks and workers.; Dr. Raab's success in ending 10 years of East-West occupation made him a national hero. And when he and Premier Khrushchev met thereafter, the Soviet leader would throw an arm around the Austrian and say, "My Friend, Chancellor Raab." There would be great smiles and patting by the two rotund figures.; Dr. Raab got along with the Russians quite well, partly because he was a small-town politician with an earthy style. He spoke the local dialect, rather than High German and he spoke softly. One often had to lean forward to hear him.; His most effective weapon, it was said, was the pregnant silence. Only rarely did he open his mouth, and then it often was to remove the long, curved cigar, or perhaps to utter some thing to the point.; At one People's party conference it was to shout "Kusch!" to the secretary general of the party, Alfred Maleta.; Dr. Raab, who became Chancellor on April 2, 1953, maintained a great calm under circumstances that would have frazzled the nerves of an emotional man.; Julius Raab was born on Nov. 29, 1891, at St. Polten in Lower Austria. He was of medium height, bulky, and greatly attached to white Austrian wine and food. He came from the sturdy Austrian middle class and looked it.; His father was an architect and builder. His mother was Franziska Wohlmeyer Raab. He attended the classical grammar school at Seitenstetten and obtained a degree in engineering at the Technische Hochschule in Vienna.; Entered Politics in 1927; After service in World War I, in which he attained the rank of first lieutenant, he entered his father's contracting business. He joined the conservative Christian Socialists and was elected in 1927 to the National Assembly as a representative of the National Association of Small Businessmen and Workers.; Up to 1934, during years of sharp ideological conflict in Austria, Dr. Raab was an official of the politically oriented National Assembly. For the next four years he was a member of the Federal Economic Council, and in 1938, shortly before the Nazis annexed Austria, he was Minister of Trade and Transportation in the fourth Cabinet of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg.; When the Nazis came in, Dr. went out. Through the war he was connected with a Vienna road-building concern, but he turned to politics in 1945 in the coalition government formed by Karl Renner. Dr. Raab was Minister of Reconstruction, Austria was under four-power military occupation, and the Soviet troops were the most irksome.; It was the Russians who said no when Dr. Raab was offered the post of Trade Minister, say.
